2. Read, discuss, and record your response to the following scenario and proceeding questions.

You are students on a travel course to Barcelona, Spain. None of the students in your group speak Spanish fluently, but most of your group speaks enough to ask directions, etc.

You have a free day and four of you decide to go shopping and sightseeing downtown. After several hours walking in the hot sun, one of your group says he is getting light headed and needs some water. You manage to find a café to rest and after water, he seems to be feeling worse. He is looking pale, having a hard time completing sentences and doesn't seem coherent.

What do you do?

How long would you wait until seeking extra help?

You decide he needs emergency medical treatment but no one in the group speaks enough Spanish to translate this. What do you do?
